FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EIU HONORS STUDENTS TO BE RECOGNIZED

CHARLESTON -- Among the brightest Eastern Illinois University students will be recognized Sunday, April 17, for their outstanding achievements.

They are members of the university's Honors Programs, which offer students of superior academic ability a unique opportunity to develop their potential for achievement through enrollment in an enriched curriculum providing in-depth studies.

EIU President David Jorns, Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Barbara Hill, Vice President for Student Affairs Lou Hencken and Honors Programs Director Herbert Lasky will welcome the students to the fifth annual Honors Programs awards day at 2 p.m. in the Lumpkin Auditorium in Lumpkin Hall on the EIU campus. The public is invited.

Special recognition will be given to Paul Bodine, associate professor of art at Eastern, who is the recipient of the Distinguished Honors Teaching Award.

Eastern offers talented students an opportunity to participate in two honors programs -- University Honors for lower-division students and Departmental Honors for upper-division students.
